CHECK OUT OUR BRAND NEW FOREIGN RIGHTS CATALOGUE!

Petit à Petit was first established in 1997 and ever since it has aimed to give access to culture through the medium of comic books.

This is why most of our publications take the form of Docu-Comics, an innovative way to make comic books. Our concept consists in blending short comics with beautiful documentary pages in order to introduce a given subject: art history, poetry, artists... The reader can easily learn more about his favorite topics or discover topics he is not yet familiar with in a fun way.

The majority of these Docu-Comics are drawn by a collective of artists, which means that when one story is over, the next one starts with a new style. It allows the reader to discover all the different ways a single subject can be tackled.

Besides Docu-Comics, Petit à Petit also publishes great albums of fiction and children's books which are all unique in their own way and reflect the creativity of French artists.

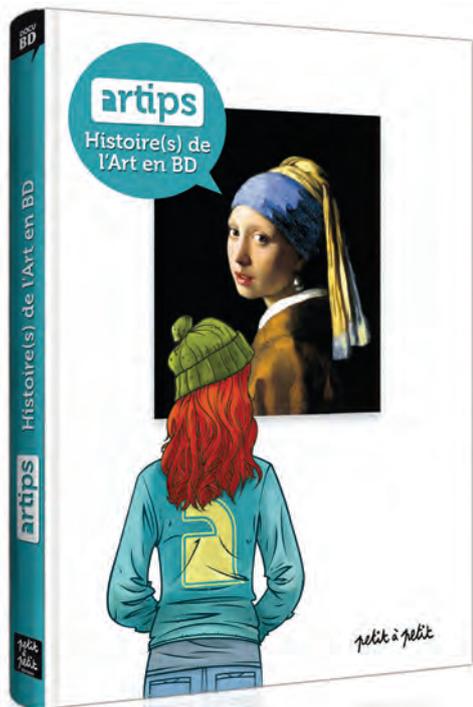

This catalogue will help you discover our newest publications. Get in touch if you are interested in our titles or want to learn more about us!

CHILDREN'S BOOKS

Cette coquetterie se définissait par une fascination démesurée pour les chaussures.

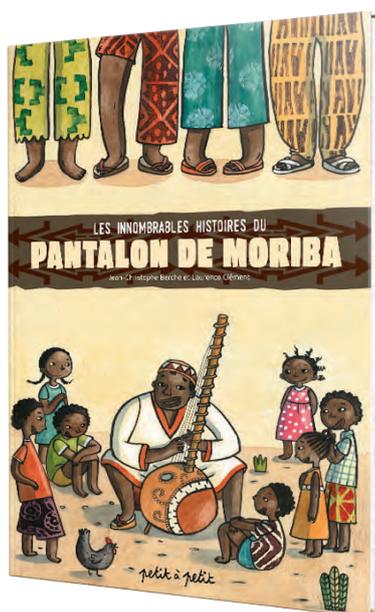

Depuis sa naissance, ce prince chaussait chaque jour de nouveaux modèles, reléguant ceux de la veille au statut d'antiquité.

Sa collection devint avec le temps des plus impressionnantes : escarpins verts et violets, bottillons jaunes à pois bleus, bottines rayées, bottes rouges, dorées ou brodées de fils de soie, sandales à lanières ou à brides, chaussons perlés, mocassins de cuir ou de corde tressée... Chaque paire étant réalisée sur mesure par le plus grand des bottiers italiens.

À n'en pas douter, l'infinie qualité de la fabrication et des matières assurait un confort royal aux pieds du prince. C'est avec fierté qu'il déambulait à longueur de journée dans les galeries de son château où l'écho de ses pas résonnait... Flap, flap, flap.

La camionnette blanche

The white van

A short and sensitive novel in order to understand, describe, prevent and heal.

Clémentine has a secret and she won't share it. Not with her mother, her friends, her teachers. She won't tell anyone. Fear has settled in her gut, distress prevents her from breathing. It's a secret that's too heavy to carry, but talking would mean thinking about it, accepting what happened, re-living the scene. Returning to that street. Seeing the white van. Seeing the man. No, she can't do that. She won't say anything.
